January 7, 2008

Each Grand-Am Rolex Sports Car Series presented by Crown Royal Cask No. 16 Entrant is specifically prohibited from any independent testing without Grand-Am prior knowledge and approval. This includes all forms of testing whether it is on track or off. Grand-Am may specify official track tests during the course of the 2008 season. All testing must be conducted on the series approved Pirelli tires as delivered by the tire manufacturer.

Entrants who proceed with testing without proper notification and approval from Grand-Am or conduct testing with non-series specific tires will be subject to the following:

If Grand-Am officials determine that any form of unapproved testing and or testing on non-series tires has taken place the entrant and drivers will have their Grand-Am privileges taken away for a period of one year. The results of any Grand-Am investigation and subsequent decisions cannot be appealed.

Constructors will be permitted to conduct one two-day maximum wind tunnel test and two one-day maximum coast-down tests. These tests must be approved by Grand-Am and all data must be shared with all customers currently competing in the series.

All other requests for testing will be evaluated on an individual basis.
